

Chris' producing, directing and editing work is internationally recognized and his videos are featured worldwide in galleries, festivals and on television. He's won numerous Canadian and international awards including a Gemini Award for CBC's "The Health Show", Best Picture Editing at Hot Docs as well as Gemini nominations for both documentary writing and picture editing. His broadcast design and comic segment work for "This Hour Has 22 Minutes" set new benchmarks for comedy in a country famous for great comic television. It also contributed to his notoriety with complaints from the NHL (for the Sean Majumder Heritage Hockey Caper) to investigations by Elections Canada (for "Ed's Back!").

Chris' work can be found in the permanent collection of the National Gallery of Canada, the Canada Council Art Bank and the Museum of Radio and Television in New York. Television credits besides those already mentioned include CBC TV's "Life : the Program", "Man Alive", "CBC News Sunday", CTV's "The Arden" (a pilot with singer-songwriter Jann Arden), MTV's "The Tom Green Show", Nickelodeon's "Wildside" and numerous others.
